

[Webinar] Commercial Drafting Considerations in a Post-COVID World

7 July 2020
4.30pm - 6.10pm
Webinar

Introduction

Covid-19 has turned the commercial world on its head in unprecedented and unforeseen ways, leaving countless broken deals and unfulfilled contracts in its wake. While financially devastating, these experiences can be leveraged to instruct us on how to prepare for such situations in the future.

Join our panel of experienced corporate lawyers and inhouse counsel for an insightful and practical discussion on ways to future-proof contracts to create a more commercially-resilient paradigm.

Participants can look forward to a discussion on the following issues:

- How a typical contract of today fares against Covid-induced non-performance including possible recourse
- Clauses to consider for pandemics and other similar situations in the future
- Likely approach of the Singapore courts to Covid-induced breaches

Panellists

Ms Teoh Sze Min

Partner
Allen & Gledhill LLP

Sze Min has over 12 years of experience advising on mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, corporate restructuring, employment law and general commercial contracts.

She regularly advises multinational corporates, private equity funds and late-stage start-ups across a broad spectrum of industries and in a variety of corporate transactions, including share and business transfers, joint ventures and funding rounds. She is experienced in leading and executing cross-border transactions, and also acts for venture capital investors in Series A and subsequent funding rounds.

Mr Joshua Tan

Managing Director
JT Legal LLC

Joshua is the Managing Director of JT Legal, a boutique corporate and finance law practice which he founded after heading the Corporate Practice Group of an International Joint Law Venture in Singapore.

With more than 20 years of corporate and finance law experience under his belt, Joshua is a familiar face in the fund raising and investment circles. He is well-regarded for his expertise in corporate matters such as mergers and acquisitions, trade sales, corporate restructuring and rescue, and a variety of fund-raising exercises whether relating to start-ups (from seed funding to Series D), SMEs, MNCs or listed companies.

Joshua has also given advice and assisted in application to the MAS for license(s) relating to the Payment Services Act and the Securities and Futures Act. Apart from corporate and regulatory matters, he is also well sought after as a commercially savvy negotiator in alternate dispute resolution matters involving settlement of commercial disputes.

He is also actively involved in the start-up scene in Singapore, and can often be seen attending events at start-up bootcamps, incubators and accelerators in Singapore.

Ms Elaine Seow

Director
Focus Law Asia LLC

Elaine is the head of the corporate department in Focus Law Asia LLC.

She began her legal career as a litigator in Singapore. She then moved to London where, as a property litigation solicitor, she worked with barristers and Queen's Counsel. She returned to Singapore to practise as a corporate lawyer.

In the course of her 20 years in practice, she has regularly advised MNCs, SMEs, institutions of higher learning on their commercial contracts and employment law matters. She has represented parties in joint venture deals in the information technology, food and beverage and the medical and healthcare sectors. Like a general practitioner, she sees herself as the first point of call for her clients as they consult her on a wide range of general corporate and commercial matters.

In 2016, she was included in the list of Singapore Business Review's "40 under 40 Influential Lawyers" and has been mentioned in the Legal 500 on Employment Law. She has contributed to publications in Thomson Reuters in the area of charity law and has updated Halsbury's Laws of Singapore on Company Law. She is a member of the Singapore Association of Women Lawyers. She regularly supports the Singapore Business Federation in presenting Singapore law to incoming foreign business delegations.
